BRIEFS by PORTIA

Out of this world is the Lick Observatory atop Mt. Hamilton and to visit it is a must for all. A fortnight ago we headed up precipitous hillsides, cultivated with well-groomed orchards clinging so precariously, one wondered how the trees ever found time to produce fruit. We circled up and up and looked down on the curving checkerboard of cultivated valleys and the ranges of hills rolling back toward the ocean in ever diminishing shades of blue. It was pure beauty.

Instead of the jagged grandeur of the north, the terrain seemed to have lost the point and gone in for t[illegible]-rounded curves of the gay nineties, wearing oaks, maples and syçamores dripping with mossy fringe. Within 20 miles we climbed about 4000 feet which may explain why the road wasn't even distantly related to the shortest distance between two points and no kin of that "long road that knows no turning." It was something turned out before OPA tinkered with priorities for hairpins. The hairpin turns would have oversupplied all the beauty "shoppes" on Hollywood Boulevard. It was paved all the way and, according to an optimistic engineer, amply wide for two cars to pass, however, at the half way, some official decided to break down and tell all and posted a kingsize sign, Narrow Road. Brother, who was peering down 3000 feet dreaming dreams of piloting a jet plane, gave a look and exclaimed, "Now, he tells us!"

To arrive at the observatory, the road, and those who travel it, climb three and descend two mountains, life's ups and downs, we always say. We arrived at the crest of the first just as the sun took a farewell gander at the world from behind a distant mountain. All we could see was a glowing orange crescent fixed atop the purple peak. Brother made like a Comanche shrieking, "What's that?" and on learning it was the setting sun, replied, "Oh, I thought it was a coca cola sign." Such an appreciation of the aesthetic! Just the type to think that "the music of the spheres" is a singing commercial. We traveled up the hills into the light and then descended into the darkening valleys. As we kept coming round the mountains, I felt like the end man on a bobsled at Lake Placid, holding the car to the side of the cliff simply by digging in my toenails and leaning toward Mother Earth, away from the great expanse of nothingness. Looking down there was a definite urge to shout, "Geronimo" and hit the silk. Looking up we could see molded to the very top of the peak, the two silver domes of the observatory, something out of a dream by Merlin.

On the crest of Mt. Hamilton we watched the hills receding to the blue-black of the night in the east, while in the west, they marched into the flaming splendor of crimson, orange and amethyst rose into the cool green blue above, while winding through the valleys like a glacial stream, was the silver fog. We surveyed the vastness below and almost could hear Satan offering the kingdoms of the world, but looking up at the worn silver coin of the moon, the still planets, and glittering constellations, realized that even earth's kingdoms have a ceiling price as measured by eternity.

With the interest of seasoned scholars, inside the building, Sister and Brother looked over the collection of meteorites, photographs of Halley's comet and eclipses. We climbed to the little observatory and peered through the glass. I'm a bifocal man myself, but under the tutelage of one of the

Mayor Donald Fisher to Quit Post; Park Beautification Halted

During an informal session of the City Council following the regular meeting Tuesday night, Mayor Donald Fisher stated that he intends to resign from office at the next meeting. Fisher, whose home is at San Mateo, said that because of his inability to obtain housing here, he felt it was only fair that someone in Menlo Park take over the job.

DONALD FISHER

"Of course, I will be glad to serve the remainder of my term if the people want me to do so," Fisher said.

The other Councilmen made no recommendations as to whom would fill the vancancy. It was indicated however, that Charles Burgess, Commissioner of Streets, would take over the duties of the mayor.

PARK PLAN OUSTED

Plans to beautify memorial park on Santa Cruz avenue with the installation of lawns and a sprinkler system, recommended by Commissioner Wallace Brown at a recent meeting, was tossed in the basket after preliminary work on the project had already begun. Although Brown was not present at the meeting, he left word that he favored the "rainmaker" type sprinkling system instead of the underground Thompson head system. Mayor Fisher said that he felt that if the job could not be done right, it ought to be forgotten. He suggested that the contractor, Eugene Thomas, be paid for his services rendered thus far and abandon the idea. Other Councilmen favored the suggestion. In further discussion of the property, it was decided to leave it as is until a time when a memorial building could be built there.

Chief of Police Jack Yount appeared before the Council and said that there was much enthusiasm in local veteran circles favoring a memorial building on the site, to be used for a public hall, etc. He said it was generally indicated that the $2900 that was to have been spent to beautify the park, go toward the fund to construct such a building.

Charles Burgess said that at the last Planning Commission meeting it was disclosed that the county has allocated $90,000 for construction of five memorial buildings; one in Daly City, South San Francisco, Half Moon Bay, Burlingame, and Redwood City. Under the plan, Menlo might get one in about five years, Burgess said.

J. W. Pembroke suggested that "pressure be brought to bear" on the supervisors so they would include Menlo Park in the list. He said we should ask for at least a $35,000 structure.

Mayor Fisher said he would personally investigate the matter.

PLANS TO BE DRAWN

Santa Cruz avenue development gained momentum when after some debate it was decided to have City Engineer Edwin Smith draw up plans and specification for the project to present at the next Planning Commission meeting October 5, for further discussion. It was indicated that major changes will be made in the initial proposal. The huge parking lot was the focal point of discussion and it was suggested that the parking area be drawn in the plan but not developed until a later date when it becomes necessary to do so.

Burgess said that in order to get state aid for the project, the plans and specifications should be drawn up for presentation.

Cost of resurfacing city streets thus far this year has amounted to only one-third of the budget under the present 10-year plan, it was revealed in a preliminary study made by Commissioner Burgess. He said that from now on, the streets could be kept in good repair and even resurfaced again before the 10-year period lapsed, if necessarp.

Pointing out the poor street lighting in some sections of the city Roy Gray suggested that a survey be made and correct the condition. It was decided to have the P.G.&E. make a city-wide survey before any action is taken. Other methods of operating the lighting system will also be studied.

Police Commissioner Lloyd Neuman announced the State Highway Department suggested that the intersection at El Camino and Santa Cruz avenue be the only "No U-Turn" intersection in the city and an ordinance was introduced to that effect.

E.P.A. To Study Muni Organization

Problems relating to transportation, recreation, planning, industry, and government were discussed by directors of the Citizens Service League at their meeting in the Ravenswood school on September 20.

A plan to provide shelters at stops of the school and transit busses are being studied by the committee on transportation, headed by J. H. Stubbe. The committee report suggested coordinating the school and transit bus stops, and is studying ways and means to provide the shelters.

A communication from J. H. Kaiser Co., relating to industrial sites in the district, stated that this community will be kept in mind in case of expansion of their activities makes a plant on the peninsula advisable. William Gross, chairman of the industrial development committee, is studying titles and other conditions relating to these sites.

The community services committee, reporting through Col. J. H. Connolly, stressed the need by the Ravenswood Recreation Association of additional funds for purchase of equipment. Fifty dollars was contributed by the League for this purpose. Col. Connolly stated that through county support, a staff of instructors is being made available for the recreational program, and told of plans for a modest recreational building to be erected on school property.

In plans for local police control, president Floyd Baker was instructed to look up in formation on municipal organization, for report at the next meeting.

Although the September meeting is supposed to be the annual meeting, this was overlooked until too late to notify members, and the directors set the October meeting for the annual election of directors. The date will be October 18, and the meeting will be held in the Ravenswood school auditorium, at 8 p.m.

FALL AND FOOTBALL

Fall and football are synonymous and whether you take your football via the radio, comfortably apathetic before an open fire, or choose to witness it with tingling enthusiasm in brisk autumn sunshine or just possibly behind a screen of silver fog, the season is on and a seat on the 50-yard line is worth two on the stock exchange

Many localites headed up to Berkeley for Saturday's game and on Sunday, among those going up to Kezar stadium were the Frederic Wests and their son, Stephen, and their houseguest, Warrant Officer William R. Kiner, USNR, a cousin of Mrs. Wests. Mr. Kiner, whose home is in Philadelphia, is on his way to Pearl Harbor.

PETALS FOR THE BRIDE'S BOUQUET

One of the most exquisite weddings of the season was that of Alice Whelan and Captain Cedric Lussier which was solemnized at the Church of the Nativiey at 11 o'clock Saturday morning with a Nuptial High Mass. The Reverend Thomas J. McKeon performed the ceremony befor the altar which was banked with masses of snowy gladioli, from which rose white tapers. Bordering the center aisle were white glads fastened to the pews with great white satin bows.

The bride, carrying a bouquet of white orchids and bouvardia, was particularly lovely in a gown of white satin made with a high neckline, long sleeves, a fitted bodice and bouffant skirt with the fullness falling into a graceful train. Her long net veil, styled with a cornet cap, cascaded over the train.

Alice's attendants were Mrs. Frank Donohoe, matron of honor, and Miss Joan Shaw, maid of honor, who were frocked in delicate shell pink faille made with snug fitting bodice, short cap sleeves, a large square collar and full skirt. Their half hats matched their gowns and they carried bouquets of pale pink begonias.

The eight bridesmaids, Alice Hanley, a cousin of the bride; Eleanor Lussier, the groom's sister; Jean and Marguerite Lussier, cousins of the groom, and Lenore Rooney, Margaret Ann Partridge, Mary Louise Cattermole and Brenda Doyle all wore gowns and half hats of ice blue faille styled like those of the maid of honor. In stunning contrast to their gowns, their bouquets were of American beauty begonias tied with great taffeta bows of the same shade.

The flower girl, Ann Hanley, wore a frock of pale pink fashioned after the manner of the bridesmaids.

Joseph Whelan, brother of the bride, was the best man.

Donna Marie Bramer, a cousin of the groom, and Mervin Griffin were soloists during the Nuptial Mass.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Whelan was gowned in a smart black ensemble which she wore a Dache hat of black.

Mrs. Lussier also selected a black gown and her hat was of black with a striking color note of pink ostrich.

"Happy is the bride the sun shines on" and the heavens showered brilliant autumn sunshine and happiness on the young couple as they left the church and went on to the Whelan home where a reception for about 500 friends was held in the spacious gardens.

The bride's table was covered with a cloth of heirloom lace centered with the wedding cake outlined with festoons of gardenias and stephanotis.

One of the highlights at the wedding breakfast came when the bride threw her bouquet, which was caught by Jean Lussier, and most appropriately according to the chirping notes of a gossipy little bird.

Going away, the bride wore a chic gray ensemble patterned in gold nailheads and her small gray hat also glittered with a gold trim.

Upon returning from their wedding trip to Carmel the young couple will occupy their new home at 1606 40th avenue in San Francisco where they will reside while Cedric attends the University of San Francisco.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Whelan, attended the Convent of the Sacred Heart in Menlo Park, Notre Dame at Belmont and Dominican College at San Rafael. Her brothers are Harry G. Whelan, Jr., John Degnan Whelan and Joseph Michael Whelan.

Captain Lussier, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Norman Lussier, recently received his discharge from the Army Air Corps after serving in the European theater where he was awarded the Silver Star, Presidential Unit Citation with four Oak Leaf Clusters and the Purple Heart.

Ratiocinations

LOUIS J. STELLMAN

A good many people are wondering—and among them are plenty of service men—whether we have stopped the war in Germany and Japan only to transfer it to our own continent in the form of bitter, widespread and all-out economic strife; for, during the weary and terrible years our men have fought and died to vanquish Autocracy and Power Politics abroad, our own industrial tycoons and Labor Czars have been piling up swollen profits and exorbitant dues to gird themselves for a post-war show-down.

The present war between C.I.O. and the powerful triumvirate of automobile manufacturers, menacing and ruthless as it already is, may prove to be only the opening gun for a nation-wide test of strength between Capital and Labor. That it jumped the gun on the labor-management conference scheduled for October 29, at which it was hoped to compose many if not all the conflicting issues between employers and employes, shows the reckless and aggressive humor of the contestants. The arbitrary parade of force and implied threats of the general strike by Labor bosses are not too far removed from some of Hitler's saber ratling and shouted warnings of world-destruction. Nor was Mr. Ford's drastic lay-off of fifty thousand workers a good sign. There is bound to be trouble ahead of no mean order (or disorder) and we shall have to answer with a shrug of something like despair the question of multitudinous G.I. returnees, "What the devil have we been fighting for."

Probably it will all be ironed out, after scaring us nearly to deatb and delaying unconscionably the reconversion plan, so well begun. And, maybe it will prove the sort of purge that makes for a healthier economic situation after the suffering is over. It must be remembered that, for, perhaps, the first time in our national history, the worker and his boss, collectively speaking, meet on an equal footing. Both have plenty of money and political power. Each will try his damnedest to win unreasonably selfish gains. If either Labor or Capital possessed a dominant advantage it would be much more dangerous than it is now, for if one side scored a clear-cut victory and was able to dictate terms, we might have something like Autocracy and a possible revolution on the one hand and a form of collectivism with its inevitable slackening of in on the other.

As it is, two almost equally matched antagonists will confront each other and, given ordinary intelligence, will decide that Compromise is the better part of Valor. Industry as a whole is more than willing to play ball for the common good and scores of working men with whom I have talked abhor strikes and ask only for the reasonable wage which I believe the great majority of employers are willing to grant.

scientists, soon had the moon, complete with craters and mountains, on the doorstep. Then, into the big observatory where silently we entered the darkness and footed it like a spirit procession circling the interior of the dome. While waiting our turn at the telescope, Sister and Brother interviewed a young attendant, a graduate student from Cal and not even when he comes up for his doctorate orals, will he have such a quizzing. Fortunately he not only had a feeling for the stars but for moppets and in answer to their questions, gave them a running patter, entirely within their speed limit. Everything from the seasons on Mars to star time, which is not the title of the latest top tune on the hit parade but a variation in time due to the fact that stars have 366 days to our 365. But it was out of all time to sit in the semi-dark hearing the children's small clear voices going into the profundities of science while the great shadows of the telescope's gears clambored up the concave walls making patterns strictly from a modern charcoal composition, while curving overhead was a crescent slice of sky studded with stars.

We gazed at a portion of the constellation of Hercules, something that looked like drops of the milky way spilled in a careless moment, bits not even worth crying over. Not even the 36-inch lens of the telescope brought the heavonly bodies closer than the astronomer, through his depths of scientific knowledge and human understanding.

At last with headlights boring into the darkness, we reluctantly headed back to terrestial regions, to a world so small that when the light of international understanding is extinguished, the knowledge of its destruction comes swiftly and dreadfully to all.

"What I like about the WAR CHEST" says a war veteran

"When a fellow has been away from home, especially in the dictator countries, you sure appreciate the American way of doing things. That's what I like about the Community War Chest... it's American and democratic because nobody's forced to give. You just give because you feel like giving. And it makes you feel good to see money being used to do good. Even though we're all mighty happy that the war is over now, we musn't forget that THE WAR ON WANT IS NOT YET WON. There's still a big job to be done with War Chest dollars."

"It's sure tough to see how kids in foreign countries have been hit by war. Now they seem bewildered and lost in Peace. It is good to see how America goes on helping them and that America has the spirit to continue helping them.

"Think of the young seamen in the Merchant Marine or the older hands working a Liberty ship across the Pacific. Their job will go on long after the last gun was fired, carrying supplies to hundreds of island outposts and bringing my buddies home again. When these men hit shore, in any one of 94 ports, they are sure glad to find a decent, clean American club of their own, run by the United Seamen's Service. War Chest dollars put them there.

"Ever been homeless? There are millions of fine people destitute and homeless throughout Europe and the Philippines and China. Homes have been destroyed and families separated. There is a long, long job ahead in resettlement. Your War Chest dollars are needed to help them.
